Two kids, two fractured skulls, two broken legs

■ Two youngsters suffer parallel injuries in unrelated West Sacramento incidents; police suspect abuse in both cases

By Steve Marschke

Two youngsters have been hospitalized in unrelated incidents of possible child abuse, said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Department.

Although one, a 3-year old boy who lives on Pine St., "has taken a turn for the worse," both children are expected to survive.

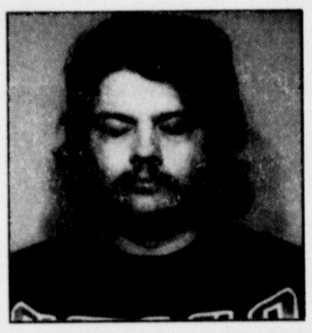

In the case involving the boy, a call for help came to authorities on Sunday morning. Fire department officials thought something was suspicious, and contacted police.

"The boy had a cracked skull and broken leg," said Moore. "The leg injury appeared to have occurred several days earlier. The mother, Michelle Logan, 22, was arrested for felony child abuse."

Logan had two other children living in the residence.

Also sought for questioning on the boy's injuries is Wayne King, whom police believe to be in West Sacramento. King is described as a white man, approximately 5' 10" and 265 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. Anyone with information is asked to call Det. Tom Bowler at 373-5870.

Suspect in injury to local three-year old:

In another case of possible abuse, a six-week old Simon Terrace apartment resident was hospitalized last Thursday for a fractured skull, broken leg, bruises and other injuries.

"The hospital called us as they were supposed to when there's something suspicious," said Moore. "It appeared to be child abuse."

The child is doing "pretty good," he added. Police are still investigating the case.

New landlord at Cypress Grove

■ Most units in troubled apartment complex have been condemned and boarded; security guards maintain strong presence

By Steve Marschke

After what one city official described as a three-year battle to force improvements at the Cypress Grove Apartments, most of the complex's 127 units now lie vacant and condemned.

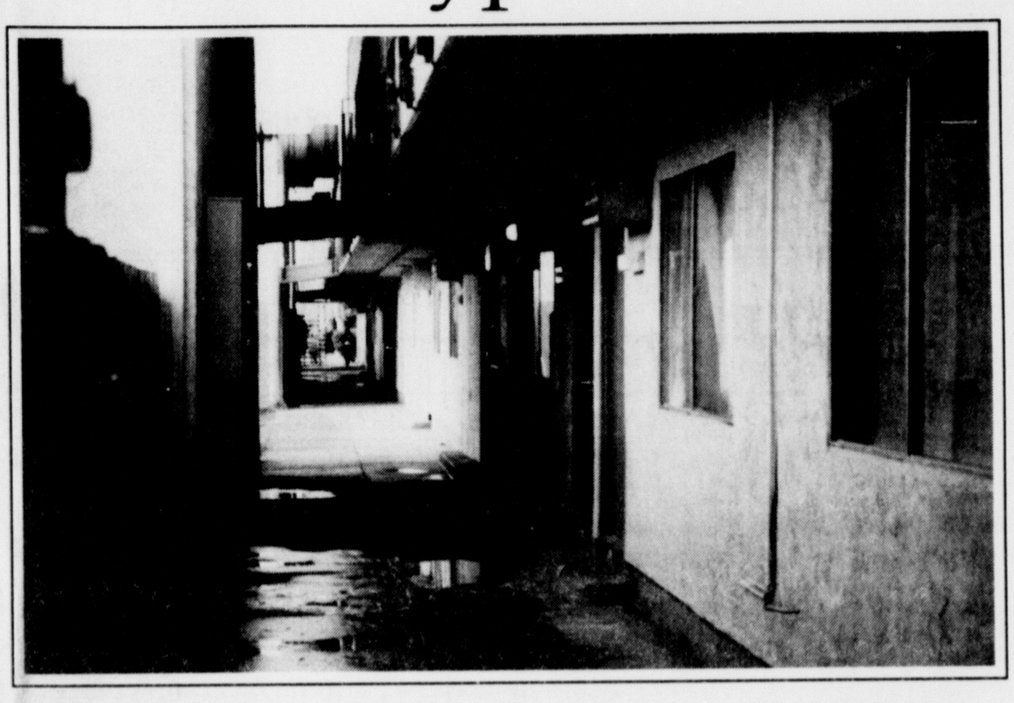

"We finally cited the owner with help from the Yolo County Health Department and district attorney's office," said Bruce Dreith of the West Sacramento Code Enforcement Department. "The property is now in receivership, which allows the court-appointed receiver to collect the rents and use some of the money to make improvements."

Dreith said that the last time he had counted, only 40 of the units were occupied. That number has since dropped. The complex is located on Simon Terrace, in West Sacramento's Bryte (northeast) neighborhood.

The property is owned by Kamal Azari, and the rights of receivership have been granted to Pathfinder Development, located on Folsom Blvd. in Sacramento.

A reporter visiting the complex on Tuesday found a security guard on duty nearby and a police squad car visiting the complex. The West Sacramento Police Department, too, is paying frequent visits to the area.

One resident, 24-year old Renee Harrison, accused Pathfinder of trying to evict the remaining tenants. She said she had received a 24-hour eviction notice, and although she had had frequent confrontations with the security guards who constantly demanded her identification, she did not know why she was being evicted.

Broken and boarded-up windows line the corridors of Cypress Grove Apartments.

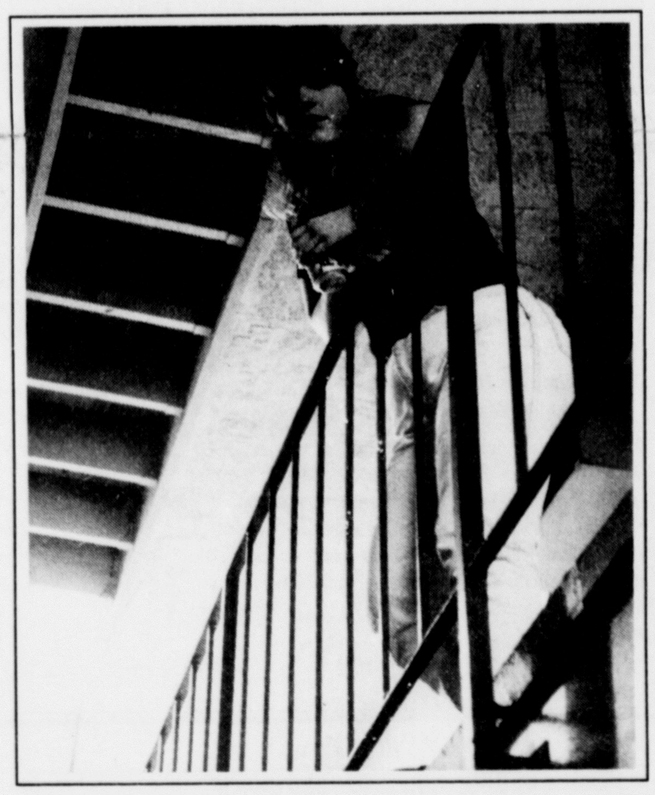

"They told me, 'You're evicted. In 24 hours, you'll be out, and I'll have $400 for you in cash.' I told them I have four kids. I can't move," said Harrison.

She claimed the security guards often threaten to pull guns, and are "just harassing me to where I want to leave."

Pathfinder spokespeople could not be reached for comment.

Dreith, of the city code enforcement squad, said it was his understanding that the company was not trying to evict all the tenants -- merely the "problem" residents.

"I think they're trying to get rid of some of the problem tenants," he commented. "And they're going through and saying, 'either pay your rent or you're out.' "

Renee Harrison says the new landlord is trying to harass her into vacating her apartment.

State says West Sac failed to meet deadline

West Sacramento has received another "Notice of Violation" from state water quality officials this week.

The notice stems from a disagreement over whether the city met its requirement to submit a "local limits" plan for sewage discharges by Dec. 1.

The city was required to create a set of "local limits" on local sewage discharges from businesses and other users, defining guidelines for allowable acidity, heavy metals and other sewage components headed for the local

'Cheaper' decision appealed

The Southport Homeowners Association has officially requested an appeal of the West Sacramento Planning Commission's decision to approve a permit to build a new "Super Cheaper!" store in Southport, near where Linden Rd.'s southern end meets Jefferson Blvd.

The appeal cites troubles with the traffic study done for the project, which concluded that the store would reduce car traffic across the Jefferson Blvd. bridge.

It also protested that "quality of life" issues were brushed aside when the planning commission decided to allow the store to proceed.

The appeal will be heard by the West Sacramento City Council at a future date.

5-year plan for redevelopment

The five-person city council of West Sacramento, sitting as the city's redevelopment agency, will debate the redevelopment agency's five-year plan at their meeting tonight (Dec. 7) at 7:00 p.m.

The plan will cover the agency's anti-blight efforts and ideas for promoting new affordable housing, retail opportnuties and other redevelopment projects.

About 44 percent of West Sacramento is within the redevelopment agency's boundaries. Within this district, much of the property tax revenue is earmarked for redevelopment use. Much of the redevelopment agency includes vacant land such as the Southport Industrial Park.

The meeting will take place in the city council's chambers on the 2nd floor of the World Trade Center building, 2101 Stone Blvd. in West Sacramento.

Council looks for city fat to trim

■ 'Sacred cows' of police and fire departments will see reductions during current year

Fire stations at 15th Street and Southport may be consolidated as part of cost-cutting plan.

By Steve Marschke

At a special Saturday morning workshop, the West Sacramento City Council approved in concept a million-dollar slate of cuts for the city's general fund. The cuts will total about $1.09 million from the $13.9 million funding levels for 1993-94.

Included in the new cuts will be $300,000 trimmed from the police department, $250,000 from the fire department, $80,000 from the department of parks and community services, $80,000 from the city manager's office and $40,000 from the finance department.

"About a million dollars needs to be cut," said City Manager Joe Goeden. "The city council on Saturday authorized us to do a final budget based on this."

The cuts are the result of both a declining economy, which has reduced sales tax and some other revenues, and of new state legislation directing money away from local governments in an effort to help the ailing state budget.

Until this year, the city has been able to largely protect its fire and police departments from cuts. And this year, according to Goeden and city council member Wes Beers, the cuts to the public safety departments will not hurt service levels too badly.

"In the police department, we've got about 12 vacant positions," said Goeden. "Four of these will be left vacant in the new budget."

The fire department will cut its shifts from 13 personnel to 12, added Beers.

"The chief recommends we begin looking at creating one station somewhere between (the existing fire stations at) 15th St. and Southport, with two companies in it," he also said.

There will be no layoffs, said councilman Greg Potnick, but the city will be unable to fill about 10 positions total, and will allow them to disappear through attrition.

"But they're hard cuts," he said. "The bottom line is we'll have 10 fewer people."

Also facing the axe will be $95,000 in funding earmarked to help market the local hotel and motel industry. But that money hasn't been used in recent years since the city and local hotel/motel association haven't been able to agree on ground rules and how to share marketing costs.

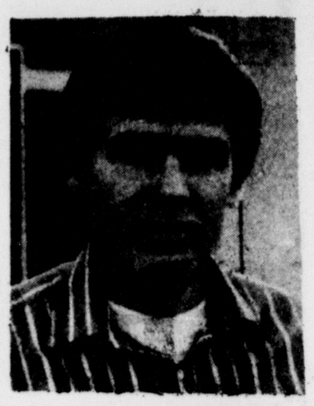

The redevelopment agency will drop its H.E.L.P. housing program, but will keep two other housing buyers' assistance programs. It will also lose an administrative analyst -- a move not expected to be too painful, since two major redevelopment planning projects are now complete.

The council also directed Goeden to look at ways for the redevelopment agency to help cover facilities improvements for the police and fire departments (the police are moving into a new headquarters building on Triangle Ct.), so rent money from the county at the new Triangle Ct. social services headquarters can go to the city general fund.

The new budget will return for council approval, and will outline city spending for the 1994/95 fiscal year ending in June.

Fisher family member faces 'hair-razing' crisis

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Last Saturday night, my 19-year old daughter stuck her head out of the bathroom and screamed, "Dad, get in here! Now!"

The terror in her voice made me leap out of my chair and hurry to her side. "What's the matter?" I asked out-of-breath as she stood next to the shower with a towel wrapped around her, staring down with disbelief into the bathtub.

"Look at that!" she said, pointing to the drain. "Can you believe it?"

"What am I looking for -- a giant spider, what?" I asked, still trying to catch my breath.

"Look at all that dead hair!" she exclaimed. "I'm going bald!"

"Is that what this is all about?" I asked with a sigh of relief. "A little hair in the drain?"

"A little hair?" she shouted, looking at me like I was blind. "The drain is completely clogged with it -- and this has been going on for weeks and weeks."

"But everyone loses some of their hair when they wash it," I assured her. "It's perfectly normal."

"That's real easy for you to say," she said. "You're not the one who is going bald! Enough is enough -- I'm calling the doctor."

"But Carrie, it's Saturday night -- your doctor's probably not even in town."

"Then I'm calling his emergency exchange -- they'll have someone on call."

Having lived with my daughter for almost twenty years, I knew better than to try and talk her out of it, so I calmly sat down next to her on the couch and quietly listened in on a phone conversation which went something like this: "Doctor, my name is Carrie Fisher. I'm 19 years old and in good health, but I think I'm going bald. That's right -- bald! Every time I wash my hair, tons of it falls out. I find it all over my pillow -- my clothes -- my car seat--everywhere. I've taken to walking around with greasy hair and wearing hats. I won't let anyone touch my hair -- including my new boyfriend. I live in fear that someone will accidentally yank out a big chunk of it. I've bought every herb and vitamin at the store, drank gallons of water, checked out every related article in the library, and have even considered using Louise Mandrell's hair treatment for old women who are losing their hair." She paused for a moment, took a deep breath and with great difficulty, added, "And my grandmother says if that doesn't work, I'll have to buy a pretty Eva Gabor wig."

As Carrie listened nervously to what appeared to be a reassuring voice on the other end of the line, I thought back to my teenage years when I had often worried that I might end up like my poor dad, who had lost almost all of his thick, wavy auburn hair by the age of 21. According to family lore, he had apparently tried everything to reverse the process, including rubbing in gallons of Witchhazel and globs of every miracle salve on the market. He even shaved his head, hoping that all his hair would grow back the way it once was if it just had a fresh start. Unfortunately, nothing seemed to work, and as sad as my mom and everyone felt for him, I can still remember how incredibly relieved I was to find out that baldness is passed down through the genes of the mother, and not the father.

"So, what'd he say?" I asked Carrie when she finally hung up the telephone.

"He thinks I'm probably stressing out a bit."

"Oh, really?"

"Yeah -- over my college classes or because I have a new boyfriend -- or maybe a combination of the two."

"Well, that makes sense," I said. "You know, I remember reading somewhere that hair comes and goes in cycles. I think it grows for about seven years, dies off, gradually falls out, and then replaces itself. Maybe you're just at the end of one of those cycles?"

"Yeah, the doctor said something like that, too. I guess maybe I am taking this a little bit too seriously, huh?"

"Maybe just a little."

"Okay, I'll try to chill out, but you gotta promise me something."

"Sure -- you name it."

"You gotta make Ty and Paul stop calling me Patches and Kojak."

The 49ers (11-2) gave the Atlanta Falcons a terrible beating last Sunday at Candlestick Park. The defense played very well, holding the Falcons' run-and-shoot offense to 229 yards.

The key to the 49ers' road to the Super Bowl will be their defense, because their offense, with Steve Young and Co., rolled up a 50-14 victory and they still maintain their home field advantage throughout the playoffs over Dallas.

The 49ers can clinch a first-round bye in the playoffs with a victory against San Diego or a Minnesota loss to Buffalo.

Meanwhile, in Dallas (11-2), the Boys beat the Eagles 31-19 in Philadelphia with a last-minute 94-yard touchdown interception. Dallas plays host to the Cleveland Browns (9-4) next Sunday and the 49ers travel to San Diego (9-4) to face the Chargers, who lost to the Raiders 24-17 on Monday night.

49ers 31, Chargers 17.

The Chargers could clinch their second AFC West title in three seasons.

The Raiders (7-6) needed a victory to stay alive in the scrambled playoff picture that has five AFC teams tied at 7-6. The Raiders tangle at home with Denver (7-6) this Sunday, and the loser will be out of the wild card picture. Denver QB John Elway hurt his left knee last week and may sit out this game. But the Denvers own the Broncos:

Raiders 27, Denver 24.

The Sacramento Kings (7-7) return home after a good road trip in which they beat the Heat in Miami for the first time in Sacramento history, and the New Jersey Nets. The Kings face Milwaukee on Tuesday, then Seattle on Thursday, and close the homestand on Saturday against the Warriors.

In the boxing world, Sacramento's Tony "The Tiger" Lopez is in Monterrey, Mexico, getting ready for the biggest fight of his successful boxing career. Tony will fight on Saturday, Dec. 10, against the Legend of Mexico, Julio Cesar Chavez, for the Championship. Chavez is a 4 to 1 favorite to retain his title, but you got to like Tony's chances as a knockout puncher.

Lopez has only lost four fights in his career. Three were championship fights and the fourth was a disqualification bout that he avenged later. Tony must knock out Chavez to win, because the fight is in MEXICO!!

You can watch this fight and four other championship fights on pay-per-view starting at 6 p.m. Call Sonic Cable early and save some money!!

See ya next week!!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

A nod to the prowess of Speaker Willie Brown

You've got to tip your hat to Willie Brown.

As much as Californians love to hate him, he just won't quit.

Described as the "consummate politician," the former Assembly speaker seemed to be on the ropes after the Republican sweep of the November ballot, leaving Brown without enough votes from his peers to keep him in the speaker's seat. The next speaker, many said, was sure to be a Republican, and the Willie Brown dynasty was over.

Political pundits said he was down and out. So did newspaper columnists and cartoonists.

But, sure enough, Brown had a few tricks up his sleeve. Today, thanks to a lot of behind-the-scenes skulduggery, he may even be voted back into his old post, once again in position to kill bills and curry favors within the state legislature. In the present Assembly, that coup would be little short of a miracle.

He may not make it. But it is a compliment to his skills simply that Brown can't be counted out.

Sure, his brand of politics is self-indulgent. Sure, he's responsible for a lot of the public's disenchantment with 'career politicians.'

But isn't it somehow encouraging to see Brown prove that it's never really over until it's over? That the only time you truly fail is when you stop trying? That no one really has to accept other people's judgment on what is possible, and what is not?

Much is left to be explored in the workings of the city's public works department and sewage plant.

After many months in denial, he city council's policy on this issue is "full disclosure."

But with public works management declining to talk to the media, and public works employees afraid to talk, who is providing the "full disclosure"?

Letters to the Editor

Falsely accused

I am a disabled 66 year old man with Multiple Sclerosis and other ailments. My income is $7,234 a year from social security. I need legal assistance. A year ago, a book written by Ruth Langlos and Dennis Niemics was published by New Horizon naming me as the murderer of John Langlos.

August 10, 1994, an NBC newsmagazine, "Now," advertised me as a "guilty man who was set free because of a botched autopsy." On the "Now" show that same evening Langlos' "botched autopsy" was tied into Nicole Simpsons' "coroners errors." These more recent slanders and invasions of privacy top 18 years of my notoriety as a person falsely accused of murder and wrongfully tried for murder. (Dr. Thomas Noguchi was drummed out of office by Ruth Langlos and the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors ostensibly over his finding that John Langlos died of natural causes).

"Lies fly round the world while truth is putting on her boots." The lie that John Langlos' body was found in a "blood spattered" office appeared in five Los Angeles Times articles, in "People" magazine and in Connie Chung television newscasts and interviews in Los Angeles.

The lie that I was arrested with Langlos' wallet and credit cards in my possession came from Cynthia Allison on nationally broadcast "Inside Edition." The lie that John Langlos was beaten and strangled to death came from on the scene Downey policemen who also said John had had a 300 pound desk dropped on his head.

The lie that John Langlos was found with his head lying in a widening pool of blood is in Chapter 1 of Murder No Doubt. The pool of blood is also shown on the bookjacket's faked death scene photo. The photo was also used by NBC News in their slanderous reenactment footage. Both NBC News and the book are claiming that John Langlos was still bleeding two days after his death.

Eighteen years ago on February 2, 1976, the on the scene coroners investigator stuck a thermometer in the body of John Langlos and measured a 75 degree dead body temperature, and observed dead body lividity and rigor mortis. The next day, Dr. Eugene Carpenter performed an autopsy, found no sign of fatal injury and concluded that John Langlos had died of a heart attack. On Wednesday, August 10, 1994, Katie Couric said that the autopsy was "botched" and a murderer, Eugene Hartman, was thereby able to walk the streets of Sacramento. Five years ago "Inside Reports" filmed me walking the same streets and Penny Daniels said that I was "stalking Ruth Langlos."

Help out

The holidays are a time of renewed hope. They provide the chance to recall good times shared with family and friends, and to look ahead to the new year. While tragic stories of family violence have filled the media, here in Yolo County hundreds of women and their children have begun to rebuild their lives. This year they will celebrate their holidays free of violence for the first time.

In the past year, the Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Center of Yolo County has provided crisis intervention, safe shelter at Harper House, counseling, and education to over 7,000 women, children and men.

As we enjoy this holiday season, let us also remember those who are working to overcome physical and sexual abuse. Your gift will help build hope and bring joy to the women and children who are rebuilding their lives.

Please join me this holiday season in honoring the work of the Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Center and the families it serves by sending one of the following items to the Center:

- Presents for women and children (bathrobes, toys, slippers, sweaters and jackets (new), department store gift certificates).
- Grocery store gift certificates ($10-$25) from any major supermarket chain.
- Foodstuff (canned: tuna, soups, peanut butter, fruits, vegetables; frozen: ground meat, hot dogs, chicken, turkey, vegetables).
- Disposable diapers (all sizes).
- Cash contribution to the Center to guarantee food and shelter for battered women and their children throughout the coming year.

If you would like to help, please call the Center at 661-6336. Checks made out to SADVC should be mailed to: The Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Center, 927A Main Street, Woodland, CA, 95695.

Helms, taxis

So ol' Senator Jesse Helms has warned President Clinton not to set foot in North Carolina lest he come protected with an armed guard. And this is the man (Jesse Helms) who will soon be at the HELM of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee? Gimmie a break, please.

On another topic:

Last week's disclosure that over half the area's taxi drivers carry no PL & D insurance reflects not only a major violation of the law, but also a major financial risk for passengers and drivers alike. While drivers lease the cabs from the major taxi companies, this does cover insurance, which we are told runs as high as $9,000.00 yearly, giving a major financial advantage to drivers who forego it.

For some 25 years taxi drivers have been protected from competition at Sac Metro Airport; i.e., regular bus service (Regional Transit, YoloBus) has not been allowed heretofore. While one argument is that private enterprise is better than anything that is in any way tax-supported, it is time to draw the line when what is private is not financially responsible and costs the consumer so much more out-of-pocket.

It would be in the consumers' best interest to extend bus service to/from Sac Metro Airport and encourage those taxi drivers without insurance to take the test for a bus driver.

Port

I am wondering if I am the only one in Sacramento or East Yolo County who is opposed to a multimillion dollar rip off by the Sacramento Yolo Port District? This port operates like any business, except for the fact that when they run short of capitol, it just imposes a tax hike on it's neighbors. We have been paying for this port for decades and I for one am sick and tired of this rip off. If this port has potential as director Mike Vernon said it has, then why in tarnation don't they just borrow the money it

Last Sunday night an automobile wreck nearly cost the lives of two young women on the incline to the Southern Pacific bridge at this side of the river. J. F. Whitney of Oak Park was going west while a traveling salesman was going towards Sacramento with two young ladies in a Buick roadster. Mr. Kahn, the driver of the Buick, was busy with the girls and got too far over on his right of way, running into the Ford driven by Whitney. The impact was severe, with the result that one of the girls had a rib broken and the other had a badly cut hand, requiring seven stitches to close the wounds. Mr. Kahn consented to pay all damages if only the matter could be kept out of the papers.

Jess has a game preserve near Chandler in the Sutter Basin and rents shooting privileges to several of the local boys who think themselves good shots. Clarence Reynolds is very proud of the new boathouse he launched last Tuesday just below the shipyard of the Sacramento Transportation Company. Reynolds is an expert ship builder and made capital use of his time during the war when experts were at a premium. SEVEN RESIDENTS OF RIVERBANK IN TOILS FOR BOOTLEGGING

Last Friday evening Constable Isaac Clover of Woodland, assisted by detectives from the district attorney's office and deputies, gathered in six bootleggers, one still, 27 barrels of wine and numerous bottles and other receptacles containing wine and jackass brandy in Riverbank.

Six places were raided in the Riverbank section, liquor being found in all of them. In one place a kitchen still was dripping merrily. In another fifteen 50-gallon barrels of wine were found. In another thirteen 50-gallon barrels of the forbidden juice were confiscated. Two trucks were required to transport the booze to Woodland, where it was placed in custody of the sheriff, while the alleged bootleggers were added to the string of boarders at the county jail.

The complaints, which were sworn to by operatives of the district attorney's office, were drawn by Assistant District Attorney J. H. Langenour, who assisted in the roundup.

This makes fifteen bootlegging cases awaiting trial in the Superior Court should all six be held at the preliminary examinations.

Those arrested gave their names as John Nazaroff, Andrew Machoughney, John D. Orhize, Mike Swetich, John Rueznoff and Richard S. Evanoff.

All six men were released on bail Monday morning after depositing bonds in the amount of $1,500 each.

J. C. Lewis of Riverbank was arrested Tuesday by Deputy Constable E. C. White on a charge of bootlegging.

BISHOP KEANE WILL OFFICIATE IN LOCAL CATHOLIC CHURCH

The Feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe, the patron saint of Spanish speaking people, will be observed at the Washington Catholic Church, Sunday, December 18th.

Solemn High Mass will be celebrated at 10:30 a. m. by Right Rev. Bishop Keane, who will also deliver the sermon.

Rev. Ed. H. De la Pena Espinosa from San Francisco will preach the panegyric in the Spanish tongue.

The music will be furnished by the local choir, directed by Miss Mary Ortiz, aided by some talent of Sacramento. Benediction will be given in the evening at 7:30 p. m., after which will follow the blessing of the Mexican Blue Cross by Father Espinosa.

To all Spanish speaking people this feast is of great importance and is observed with great veneration.

The Blue Cross is the Mexican counterpart of the Red Cross of the United States. It is a purely charitable organization, having similar aims and objects to those of the Red Cross.

At the ceremonies next Sunday the ladies of the Blue Cross will attend in a body and wearing their regalia.

Evening service consisting of Rosary and Benediction will be held at 7 p. m.

FOUR R. R. GRADE CROSSINGS MENACE WEST SAC. CHILDREN

The terrible tragedy that took place at Red Bluff last week has drawn the attention of parents throughout the State, particularly is this true of parents in West Sacramento.

Every morning and every evening the children of West Sacramento come to the Washington public school or go home. On their way they must cross four railroad grade crossings, one of which is perhaps the worst in the State—that at Third and Ann Streets, Washington.

There is a crossing at West Sacramento headquarters, another on the way to the State highway where the road crosses the S. F. & Sac. Railroad, another at Fifth and Harriett Streets, and the last and most dangerous at Third and Ann Streets.

In addition there are three sharp turns, one at the State highway in West Sacramento, one at Fifth and Ann Streets, and the other at Third and Ann Streets.

Fortunately Professor Case, principal at the Washington school, makes the trip for the children in his own car. He has had no accident so far and likely will have none because of the extreme care he takes with the children.

But he, too, is frequently menaced by wild drivers who believe themselves free from arrest when they pass the Fifth Street subway. Fortunately he has been able to avoid trouble and has taken great care with the children.

There are 260 children attending the Washington public school at this writing, of which about a dozen make their homes in West Sacramento.

Chief of Police McShane of Sacramento has recommended that two restaurants be closed for selling jackass and dope.

Things are improving under prohibition.

Looking back it seems a great surprise that the people of the United States ever came to anything like perfection.

They were always hampered with beer and wine and whiskey, and now they are hampered with jackass.

MICHAEL MORRISON DEAD AT RIVERBANK

Last Saturday, Michael Morrison died at his home in Riverbank after several weeks' illness.

He had resided in Yolo County for many years but lived in Riverbank only during the past year.

He was a very quiet man, attending strictly to his own affairs, leaving others to do likewise.

Besides his wife, Carrie, he left two young children, Mary and Agnes, to mourn his loss.

He was a native of Ireland.

His funeral was held Tuesday from the Cathedral, where services were held. Interment was in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

A Mexican asked a policeman in El Paso the other, "I wish you would draw your gun and shoot me dead."

The policeman answered, "Go sit on a tack."

The Mexican mistook and went and sat on a track.

Parking permits will be needed for streets around River City High

Residents living near River City High School should make sure they pick up their new parking permits by Monday, Dec. 12.

The new placards are designed to help preserve parking along nearby streets for locals, and force students and faculty at the school to use their official parking lots. Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Department said affected homeowners have already been contacted about the new parking permits. They make pick up the permits from the city finance department, 2101 Stone Blvd.

Affected streets include Clarendon, Grande Vista, and parts of Haverhill, Deerwood, Norfolk and Meadows.

Anyone parking in these areas without a placard between 6 a.m. and 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, or 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, after Dec. 12, may receive a ticket -- and it won't be to one of the high school's basketball games.

"Students need to know that they can't park there anymore," said Moore. "We're trying to help turn the streets back over to the residents."

Moore said the school's parking lots are "very adequate" for students and faculty, and that for some of them, the decision to park on residential streets was merely a "convenience."

Environmental Christmas trees

From Denise Kotko, Recycling City of West Sacramento

Shopping for a tree?

How about buying a live Christmas tree that you can plant after the holidays, or donate to the City Park's Department for planting in a local park? That way, one less tree will be cut down and one more tree will be planted to help consume carbon dioxide and produce oxygen!

Or how about an artificial tree that can be used from year to year. If your last look at artificial trees was when they were put together with aluminum poles, you might be surprised at the market availability of trees that look "real." Then again, if you simply cannot give up the tradition of a cut tree, don't forget the city's recycling program.

The event will be held on January 7 and 8, 1995 at Riverside Tree Farm, 1320 Linden Road. Cut trees can be brought to the site each day between 9:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. for grinding into mulch. Residents will also be able the mulch for their yard.

Large quantity users should call the city's recycling coordinator at 373-5810 to arrange for pick-up.

In local government

The West Sacramento City Council will hold a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd.

The City of West Sacramento Youth Commission will hold their next meeting on Tuesday, December 20, 1994, at 6 p.m. at City Hall.

treatment plant.

West Sacramento contracted the analytical work for the plan to Larry Walker and Associates of Davis, and submitted a set of local limits to the state. Richard McHenry of the regional water quality control board deemed the report to be unacceptable. Two city officials said Tuesday they were puzzled by the decision and the resulting notice of violation, since a two-option proposal was given to the state on time.

West Sacramento will be back for review in front of the regional water quality control board in January, and could receive fines or other administrative action if board members feel the city has not made adequate progress in its pre-treatment program.

On a related note, city officials say the West Sacramento sewage plant has been operating largely without trouble for about the past month (an error caused a discharge violation at the plant yesterday). The plant has drawn fines from the city in the past for violations in bacteria levels, chlorine levels and reporting procedures during recent years.

The plant historically has operated cleanly during winter months, but has had trouble operating within limits during the summer.

Meanwhile, former plant superintendent Dale Klever remains "technically on adminstrative duty" following a verbal resignation, said city manager Joe Goeden.

takes to operate this said port? Because in some point in time there would be a requirement to repay this money, when you tax something this requirement disappears and the money is for free. So I hope you people wake up to the fact that you are about to be had and let your supervisors hear how you feel about this scheme and not wait until after the fact to be heard, if you are in favor of this big rip off then you may just remain dormant it is your money...The Sacramento Bee refuses to print my letters on this subject and there don't seem to be much interest in that region most people wait until after the fact then make a lot of noise about how they have been wronged so wake up folks, it is later than you think.

Director Vernon gave us until March 31 to come up with his money...just think of who will benefit from this action and what your percentage will be? It will be zero in most cases.
